Case No. 2024 - CV - 0202231

COMES NOW Plaintiff Artemis Langford, by and through her undersigned counsel, and for her Complaint against Defendants Law Office of John G. Knepper, LLC, John Knepper, Longhorn Law, LLC, and Casandra Craven, states and alleges as follows:

INTRODUCTION

Artemis Langford is a young, transgender college student at the University of Wyoming. She applied to join Kappa Kappa Gamma, a sorority that openly accepted transgender applicants, and was accepted by a majority vote.

Defendants then filed suit on behalf of a number of Ms. Langford's sorority sisters in an attempt to recover monetary damages and remove Ms. Langford from her sorority for being transgender. In so doing, Defendants needlessly sued Ms. Langford and injected into their filings exaggerated, false, and humiliating sorority gossip as well as private details about her life. Defendants used these stories not to further their clients' legal claims, but to raise money for their own attorney fees and to get their fifteen minutes of fame. As the District Court would later find, these details were legally irrelevant and unbefitting in federal court.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

Artemis Langford was accepted into an openly transgender-friendly sorority.

10. In fall 2022, University of Wyoming student Artemis Langford applied for membership in Kappa Kappa Gamma, a sorority that openly accepts transgender applicants.
11. Ms. Langford specifically chose to apply to Kappa Kappa Gamma because it accepts transgender applicants, avoiding another sorority on campus that did not specifically indicate whether it accepts transgender applicants.
12. Ms. Langford later learned that she had been accepted into the sorority by a majority vote of its members.

Defendants agreed to use the legal system to publicly bully and humiliate Ms. Langford while seeking donations to pay for their own attorney fees.

13. On March 27, 2023, Defendants initiated a civil action on behalf of their clients ("the Clients") against Artemis Langford, a college student at the University of Wyoming, Case No. 2:23-cv-00051-ABJ ("the Lawsuit").
14. The Lawsuit alleged that Ms. Langford, as a transgender woman, should not have been permitted to have been voted into the sorority. It asserted claims for breach of contract and tortious interference with contract as well as a derivative complaint for breach of fiduciary duties against a number of Defendants.

15. The Lawsuit's causes of action did not require Defendants to allege any details about Ms. Langford whatsoever other than that she had been voted into the sorority and was a transgender woman.
16. Defendants stated no cause of action against, nor did they seek any relief from, Ms. Langford.
17. Instead, Defendants claimed that they sued Ms. Langford because they believed that she was likely a necessary party given that success on the merits would result in Ms. Langford's removal from the sorority.
18. In the Lawsuit's Complaint, Defendants raised numerous allegations of fact that were irrelevant to their legal claims and were not used to support their causes of action. Instead, the allegations appeared to be an attempt to spark public outrage at Ms. Langford's expense. These include, among others:
  - a. Unflattering and embarrassing descriptions of Ms. Langford's height, weight, and physical appearance;
  - b. Ms. Langford's alleged G.P.A.;
  - c. A discredited, drunken rumor that Ms. Langford became visibly aroused in the presence of her sorority sisters;
  - d. The inaccurate suggestion that Ms. Langford had not undergone any medical transition;
  - e. The inaccurate suggestion that Ms. Langford had not undergone any legal transition;
  - f. Personal details about Ms. Langford's sexual orientation and dating life;

- g. Implications that Ms. Langford's mundane actions must have been perversely sexually motivated.

Defendants used these allegations to gain significant media attention in connection with the Lawsuit.

19. Defendants actively participated in bullying Ms. Langford in the media. Defendants and their clients agreed to interviews on The Laura Ingraham Angle, The Megyn Kelly Show, and Fox News' America Reports and cooperated with print media sources to publish hurtful stories about Ms. Langford.
20. During the interviews, Defendants mocked Ms. Langford's physical appearance, made jabs about her G.P.A., and attempted to paint Ms. Langford as a sexual deviant who had joined a transgender-friendly sorority simply to gain access to women.
21. None of these actions were proper in the regular course of the Lawsuit, but, upon information and belief, were instead tactics to drive donations to pay Defendants' legal fees.
22. Defendants further requested that the public donate to a crowdfunding site which sought to raise $250,000 to pay their own attorney fees.
23. In addition to crowdfunding, Defendants also raised money for their own attorney fees through a secret, password-protected website which funneled money through a group called "Sapphire Syndicate."
24. Defendants further raised money for their own attorney fees through high profile social media posts and television appearances by Caitlyn Jenner.
25. Further, upon information and belief, these tactics were used to gain publicity for Defendants and their law firms.

Defendants needlessly disclosed Ms. Langford's full, legal name in court filings.

26. Initially, Defendants did not use Ms. Langford's name, choosing instead to refer to her by the pseudonym "Terry Smith."

27. Defendants claimed in court filings that both their clients and Ms. Langford should be permitted to proceed under pseudonyms due to the "significant psychological distress" as well as "threats, harassments, and safety concerns" that may arise if their true names are disclosed.

28. On April 14, 2023, the U.S. District Court for the District of Wyoming ordered Defendants "to file an amended complaint that substitutes [their clients'] real names." The District Court did not require Defendants to disclose Ms. Langford's name.

29. On April 20, 2023, Defendants filed an amended complaint which needlessly disclosed Ms. Langford's full, legal name despite previously acknowledging that doing so may cause her significant psychological distress and could put her in danger.

30. Ms. Langford has since been subject to significant media attention during which her name and likeness are used in connection with disparaging stories about her.

Defendants' legal claims against Ms. Langford were dismissed, with the court referring to allegations against Ms. Langford as "unsubstantiated" and "unbefitting in federal court."

31. On August 25, 2023, the U.S. District Court dismissed the Lawsuit. In so doing, it noted "the irrelevancy of Langford's alleged behavior."

32. The court further indicated that the allegations had "no bearing on [Defendants'] legal claims."

33. The court further recognized that the allegations were “unsubstantiated” and called them “unbefitting in federal court.”

AGAINST DEFENDANTS

48. Defendants further published and caused to be published private details of Ms. Langford's life in the media.

49. Such details concerned Ms. Langford's private affairs and/or concerns.

56. Defendants further encouraged and participated in media coverage related to the unnecessary allegations against Ms. Langford.

57. Defendants' conduct either intentionally and/or recklessly caused Ms. Langford severe emotional distress.

58. Ms. Langford suffered significant damages as a result of Defendants' conduct.
